

OvidOpenAccess

- Integrated search of Open Access content with users' subscribed resources in one convenient solution, at no extra charge
- High quality, peer-reviewed content from Medknow Publications and PubMed Central
- Access to previously hard-to-find, local content from around the globe
- Content affiliated to over 160 international medical societies and associations
- Expands coverage in over 18 subject area categories
- Quick access to full text and abstracts in biomedical and life sciences

In today's knowledge-centric, digital age, the Open Access publishing model enables the flow of peer-reviewed information for global consumption. Open Access content offers researchers and clinicians many benefits:

- Access to online, unrestricted research information produced by professionals from around the world
- Enables authors to publish scholarly research findings and share through a public forum
- Accelerates the research cycle, offering immediate access to additional and relevant findings
- Eliminates restrictions on disseminating these articles for education purposes

With OvidOpenAccess, users will get thousands of additional resources—at no extra charge—to information that will help them transform research, practice and education.
